Adams County, PA Newspaper Extracts – Marriages, 1804-34

These are the marriage notices posted in Adams County, PA newspapers from 1802 through 1834. Following, is the source information used and dates for the extracted information:

- "The Centinel", Gettysburg, Adams Co., PA, printed by Robert Harper, East of the Court House and delivered on Wednesdays. Price of a yearlong subscription in 1805 was $2. Dates extracted here: Jan 6, 1802 -- May 19, 1813
- "The Republican Compiler" published in Gettysburg, printed by Jacob Lefever, opposite the Post Office, Delivered to subscribers each Wednesday. Price, $2 per year. Dates extracted here: Sep 16, 1818 -- Jul 9, 1833
- "Republican Banner" published in Gettysburg, printed on Tuesdays. Dates extracted here: Jul 16, 1833 -- Dec 16, 1834

The date in the first column, is the date the newspaper was issued. The second column the marriage notices. I have tried to include any details that might be helpful to a researcher.

Please note the following:

If the location for the event was a town or township name, I usually did not include any other description. However, if the location was a county, I always included "county" as part of the description. For example: a marriage occurring in "Franklin," was in Franklin township. If the marriage was in Franklin county, it would say, "Franklin county."

Surnames such as McAllister, were often spelled in the newspaper as, M'Allister. I copied all information exactly as published in the newspaper, possible spelling mistakes, as well.

I used the following shortcuts: w/John Smith = wife of John Smith. s/George Jones = son of George Jones, and d/George Jones = daughter of George Jones.

Some dates were given for the event, but often they were not. They may say something like, "On Saturday last, John Smith of this borough to Mary Jones of Hamiltonban." It will be easy to figure out the correct date, if you note the date of the newspaper and also take notice of which day of the week that newspaper was published on (either Wednesday or Tuesday) and do the math yourself.

I found this obituary in a family Bible. I would assume that it was from early 1885 and in a paper that covered Miller County. At the bottom is says "[torn]hville Advocate please copy."

BARNES-The subject of this tribute, sister Lydia E. Barnes, was born March 30th, 1813, in Buncomb county, North Carolina. While young her parents moved to Tennessee. There, on the 20th day of June, 1832, she was united in marriage with Samuel N. Barnes. Soon thereafter the young couple came to Arkansas, settling in Saline county. From there they moved to Union county in 1865. They came to Miller county in 1871. I see from the Church register Bro. Barnes died triumphantly Nov. 8th, 1882, and on the 31st day of Dec., 1884, just as the old year was dying away, Grandma Barnes, as she was called, passed away from earth to her home in heaven. She was one of the noble women of earth, always exemplifying the religion she professed by her daily walk. She delighted to administer to the wants of the needy, and was always mindful of the wants of the Church. She was confined to her bed for about five months, and though she suffered much she bore it with humble Christian resignation to the will of God. I frequently visited her during her illness and always found her calmly waiting for the summons. She gave every evidence of her acceptance of God through our Lord Jesus Christ, and just before she expired she was exulting in a Saviour's love. Oh, what a trophy for the religion of the Bible! She had been waging the Christian warfare for a full half century and had never been defeated, but always victorious; whether living or dying, rejoicing in a Saviour's love. Grandma was the mother of seven children, two of whom had preceded her to the grave. Five are still living and faithfully following in the footprints of their sainted mother. Be faithful, children. A few more con[torn] and the victory will be yours, [torn] you be permitted to enter through [torn]ates into the city of our God on [torn] her shore. Oh, what a reunion [torn]d the river!

MRS. LOU BARNS DIED FRIDAY

Mrs. Lou Jane Davis Barns, born in Alabama in 1848. She was converted in early childeood, and joined the M. E. Church South in which she remained a true and loyal member until death. She was married to A. B. Barns in 1868, to this union was born nine children. Her husband and six children preceeded her to that "home" above several years. She is survived by three children a host of relative and friends. All the care and love that the skilled physicians and anxious household and friends could devise and apply for her comfort and assistance was brought into play, but, despite all, the sufferes's spirit took its flight to it's Savior and loved ones gone on before, June 20 1919. Weep not loved ones mother "is not dead, but sleepeth." She was beautiful in life, beautiful in death, but will be far more beautiful in the resurrection morn.

The Goshenhoppen Registers 1741–1819

Note to the Reader

The Goshenhoppen registers of baptisms, marriages, and deaths comprise the sacramental records of the mission church at Goshenhoppen, now Bally, in Washington Township, Berks County, Pennsylvania. They are presumably the oldest extant Catholic church registers in Pennsylvania, and belonged formerly to the old mission church of St. Paul, known since 1837 as the church of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

Beginning in 1741, the year the mission was founded by the Jesuit Theodore Schneider, and extending, with some gaps, to 1819, these registers provide a record of the sacraments administered at Goshenhoppen and outlying missions in southeastern Pennsylvania, particularly in the counties of Berks, Bucks, Northampton, Montgomery, Lehigh, and Lebanon, an area embracing a large proportion of the early German population of Pennsylvania.

Although Goshenhoppen was not the first Catholic mission in Pennsylvania, its registers are believed to be not only the oldest extant Catholic church registers in the state but the oldest in existence of the original thirteen colonies. Hence their special place in the annals of the Catholic Church in America, their overriding importance in Pennsylvania-German history and genealogy, and the reason for their translation and publication in the Records of the American Catholic Historical Society of Philadelphia.

Buried for years in the yellowing pages of this journal, however, the registers have been overlooked as a reference source, and it is doubtful that more than a handful of scholars have penetrated their secrets or tested their importance. For this reason we have chosen to reprint the Goshenhoppen registers and to place them in the hard-wearing apparel of a book. So that their contents may be readily accessible we have added an index of names, trusting that the entire work will now take its long-deserved place as a fixture on the reference shelves.

FRICKER FAMILY RESEARCH

To determine from what jurisdictional area in a European country an ancestor came, it is necessary for a researcher to locate a record in this country which specifies European origin.

Nothing has been discovered in Pennsylvania documents to give a lead to the home of the Gallus Fricker family. It has been hoped that a marriage record of Anna Maria, daughter of Gallus, and Joseph Shomo would give sufficient information to prove without doubt the parents of Joseph. It is quite uncertain that Joseph and Anna Maria were married in her hometown but a strong possibility does exist.

Many archives in Switzerland, Germany and France have been contacted and a friend in France has written to about fifty sources. We discovered a Rev. Fricker in Alsace who has done some research for us. People have been employed in various pertinent areas to investigate their local records. While material from Europe has accumulated on the Fricker surname, none pertains to the family we seek.

The following data have been compiled on the family in Pennsylvania as research progressed on the Shomo family. No active research is now being conducted on the Fricker family but it is possible that records might be found as work continues on other Pennsylvania ancestors.

GALLUS (CHARLES) FRICKER

The first record we have of Gallus Fricker is his arrival at the Port of Philadelphia.

Strassburger & Hinke, Pennsylvania German Pioneers, Vol. I, p. 434, List 150. "At the Court House at Philadelphia, Saturday, the 18th August 1750. Present: Thomas Lawrence, Esquire, Mayor. The Foreigners whose names are underwritten, imported in the Ship St. Andrew, Capt. Robert Brown, from Rotterdam and Cowes in England, did this day take & subscribe the usual Oaths. 102 By List. 279 Persons."

Listed together in the following order:

Joseph Shomony
Gallus Fricker
Johann Fricker
Anthoni Fricker

Only the males sixteen and upwards were included in the lists so that it is unknown whether Gallus had a wife when he arrived. Four children probably came with him: John, Anthony, Anna Maria and Francisca. John could have been old enough to have been married but Anthony was about nineteen years old and may have married after his arrival. Anna Maria might have married Joseph Shomo prior to sailing, during the voyage or after arrival but no marriage record has been found. It is interesting that they were all Catholics and signed the ship's list together, indicating that they knew each other before sailing. Gallus was from Germany or Switzerland, the surname being common in the latter country.

In 1754 the name of Gallus Fricker appeared on a tax list for Reading, Berks Co., Pa.

Berks County, Pa. Deed Book A-6, p. 102. 1 Sept. 1759.
"John Fricker of the Town of Easton in the County of Northampton, Shopkeeper and Anthony Fricker of the Town of Reading in the County of Berks, Shopkeeper. (The said John and Anthony being both sons of Charles (alias Gallus) Fricker late of the said Town of Reading, deceased.) And John Shorp of the Town of Reading ....Shopkeeper and Francisca his Wife and Joseph Shuma of the same place, Shopkeeper and Anna Maria his Wife. (The said Francisca and Anna Maria being both Daughters of the said Charles Fricker....) of the one part and Samuel Weiser of the Town of Reading in the County of Berks, Gen't. Whereas by Force and Virtue of a Proprietary Patent dated the 11th Day of February Anno Dom. 1752, recorded at Philadelphia in Patent Book A, Voll. 18, page 18vc." It goes on to say, ".....whereby the laws of this Province gives the Eldest Son a Double Share, they the said John Fricker, the eldest son....." Lot sold for sixty pounds "A Certain lot of Ground lying and situate in the Town of Reading aforesaid Between Penn Street and Richard Street and Between Duke Street and Erle Street containing in Breadth East and West sixty feet and in Length Two Hundred and seventy feet, Bounded Northward by the said Penn Street Westward by a Lot of Ground marked in the plan of the Town of Reading No. one hundred and Twenty Nine, Southwardby a twenty foot Alley and Eastward by a Lot marked in the Town of Reading aforesaid No. one Hundred thirty One....."

I believe that Joseph Fricker was a son of John the immigrant, son of Gallus, but have no proof. It is also possible that I have jumped to conclusions in previous statements asserting that the children were all born in Berks Co., Pa. Noting that the first three were baptized in the house of Nicholas Carty, it is possible that Joseph and Catharine brought their children from another county for a Catholic baptism. PSJ

ANTHONY FRICKER
Margaret Weiser

Margaret Weiser married first the Rev. John Dietrich Mathews Heinzelman of Philadelphia. Margaret's first child, born after her first husband's death on 9 Feb. 1756 Henrich Israel Heinzelmann, born 10 Feb. 1756 and died 12 Sept. 1774 in Ebenezer, Ga. Henry M. Muhlenberg records the fact on 2 Feb. 1777 that news was received of Margaret's death due to an accidental fall down a flight of stairs. (Weiser Family Book.)

Margaret Fricker was sponsor for Frances Gibbins in 1770. (G. Reg.)

Anthony Fricker was taxed 9 Pounds in Reading in 1759. (Pa. Arc.)

Anthony Fricker & wife sponsors for Anthony Martin, son of Henry Martin and his wife Ellen. 1766.

In 1766 Anthony's name appears among the eighty-six citizens of Reading who addressed a memorial to the King protesting against a proposed change of Government. This had been recommended by the Assembly of the Province which indicated a decided Tory feeling. (Montgomery's History of Berks County)

His name appears among the list of subscribers to Trinity Lutheran Church of Reading in 1790-1794. (Rec. of the American Historical Soc.)

In Deed Book A, p. 397, at Sunbury, Pa. is recorded a deed bearing date 11 Aug. 1775, from "Anthony Fricker, of the Town of Reading, Innholder, and Margaret, his wife (the said Margaret being one of the daughters of Conrad Weiser, late of the town of Reading, deceased..") (Ibid.)

"The Pennsylvania German" for Sept. 1910 states that "Anthony Fricker was originally a Catholic." (Ibid.)

Anthony Fricker and wife sp. for Magdalina Margaret Hert in 1770. (G. Reg.)

"Mary Fricker, a daughter (referring to Anthony and Margaret) was married on 7 Apr. 1805 to John Frantz, a Swiss, born in 1781, and a member of the Dunker Church. He was a hotel proprietor of Reading. Mary died in 1824. John and Mary Fricker Frantz were the parents of two sons and four daughters. One of these daughters, Margaret, after the death of her mother, was raised by Mrs. Snyder, widow of the ex-governor, a friend of her mother's." (Records of the American Catholic Historical Society, Sept. 1910, Vol. XXI, No. 3, p. 158.)

Was Mary Fricker Frantz a daughter of Anthony? If so, by which wife?

Margaret is named in Anthony's will but her birth is not recorded in the G. Reg. She, no doubt, is a namesake of her mother, Marg. Weiser.

Peter is specified as a grandson of Conrad Weiser in Anthony's will. Orphan's Court, Vol. 8, p. 182. 1825.
Peter mentioned as a Revolutionary War soldier. (Ibid. p. 550)

M. Catherine born 15 Aug. 1769. Sp. Joseph Chaumont (Shomo) & his wife M. Catharine. (G. Reg.)

(Note: I wonder if Catharine Elizabeth died and the next daughter was named Catharine? Anthony mentions a Catharine in his will but no Elizabeth. PSJ.)

Catharine Fricker daughter of Anton, married Jacob Merckel 20 Dec. 1789. (Trinity Luth. Church Rec.)

John Frederick born 29 Apr. 1771. Sp. Frederick Haffner & his wife Catherine. (G. Reg.)

ANTHONY FRICKER
Eva Mary (Becker ?)

Sponsors for Mary Eva, daughter of Anthony and Eva Mary Fricker at her baptism in Feb. 1781 were Laurence Leple and his wife Margaret, grandparents of the child. (G. Reg.)

"Leple - Becker: 27 Nov. 1775, Laurence Leple married Margaret Becker, the second marriage for both. Wit. Michael Kuhn and wife and Andrew Schimpfessel.". (G. Reg.)

Eva, wife of Anthony Fricker, may have been a widow when she married Anthony. The Goshenhoppen Registers do not have a record of their marriage. According to penciled notations in several places in the published version of the G. Reg., of which I have a copy, the names "(Becker) Zweyer" are inserted by Eva's name, the work of a former researcher. In checking Zweyer entries in same source, I find that on the 23rd of Apr. 1770 at George Zigfried's house, John Zweyer married Eva Becker, both single. The baptismal entries reveal that John and Eva Zweyer had children baptized in 1771 and 1774. John Zweyer is never mentioned again after the 1774 entry. In 1778 Eva Zweyer was sponsor for a child. Then there are no more entries for Eva Zweyer. Eva and Anthony Fricker would have been married prior to 1780, the date of birth of their first child. Also, Anthony became a widower in 1777. This is circumstantial evidence, but bears investigating in identifying Eva Mary Fricker, wife of Anthony. Father Alwein of Bally, Pa. refers to Eva Fricker as Eva Leple, but I believe that evidence points to her being a daughter of Margaret Becker rather than Laurence Leple. I do not have entries from the G. Reg. after 1800 and it is possible that Eva's death record could be in a later register and might give more information about all of the Frickers.

Anthony Fricker and his wife Eva sponsors for Anthony Felix of Nicholas Felix and wife Anna Maria Stahl, bapt. 5 Aug. 1781. (G. Reg.)

Schimfassel, Anthony, four weeks old, son of Andrew Schimfassel and his wife Margaret, bapt. 8 March 1789. Sp. Anthony Fricker and wife, Eva. (Margaret was apparently a sister of Eva Fricker as her marriage entry gives her name as Margaret Becker.)

On the south side of the square, the Kresge corner represents the original Outlot No. 9, a tract whose sixty feet of frontage have never been sub-divided since George Douglass took out the patent in 1762. This site upon which the Kresge store now rears its ornate front, was for over a century devoted to purposes of hospitality rather than of trade. Under sucessive names of the Captain Lawrence Inn, Frickers Hotel, the Schmucker House and the Ritter House it constituted an approved center of conviviality and sociability long before the Reading Eagle interests acquired it and converted it into a printing house.

Going back to the first patentee, George Douglass, we find him presently conveying the tract to his neighbor William Bird whose dwelling we have just described. With this acquisition Bird came into the control of ninety feet of frontage including, of course, the important Sixth Street corner. In the settlement of William's estate his son Mark sold the property to Colonel John Patton from Heidelberg Twp. Patton, in 1769, reconveyed to Anthony Fricker. Now begins the long regime of successive members of the Fricker family, all of whom were tavern-keepers.

When Anthony Fricker bought the lot he found it encumbered by a log building which George Douglass seems to have used as a general store. Mr. Fricker enlarged this structure, embellished it with a stone front and altered it for an inn, first under the name of the Captain Lawrence and then of Fricker's Hotel. Fricker was a prominent man of affairs in our embryo community and married a daughter of Conrad Weiser. He was never on good terms with his distinguished father-in-law owing to the fact that he was a Roman Catholic. Conrad was tolerant up to a point but bitterly resented the marriage of his daughter to a member of what was then a proscribed faith. He severely discriminated against the erring girl in his will.

Anthony Fricker lived on until 1807 and was buried behind the little Catholic Chapel on South Seventh Street, the building which he had helped to erect and of which he was a vestryman. At his death the corner at Sixth and Penn passed to his son William who continued in the hotel business. William's tenure was short but his widow, the popular "Mammy Fricker", ran the tavern for nearly two decades, and must have been a picturesque character. This was the amiable virago who ruled her establishment with a rod of iron and kept a whip suspended back of the bar for the preservation of order. Also, excellent woman, she carried out the biblical tradition of gathering up the fragments from the repasts of the more favored customers and dispensing them as alms to a line of mendicants which formed at the rear door on Sixth Street.

During "Mammy Fricker's" tenancy the "long room" of her tavern was the scene of most of the frolics, routs and balls given from 1820 to 1830. Here some of our first dancing assemblies were conducted under the supervision of two French dancing masters, Pierre Guigon and Bonface

August, Napoleonic refugees who had escaped after the debacle at Waterloo. The local Thespian societies rendered their productions at Mammy Fricker's while the strolling companies which visited Reading at the period gave their theatrical shows alternately here and at Weldy's "long room" on Penn Street below Second. Another distinguished patron of the Tavern was John Andrew Schulze, Governor of Pennsylvania from 1823 to 1829, who, as a son of Berks, knew our village well and never passed through Reading without tasting a glass of Mammy Fricker's raspberry wine.

In 1839 the corner passed to John Green who continued to conduct the hotel business until 1857.

(pp. 119-120)

On Seventh Street below Franklin the steeple of the little Catholic chapel dominated. In those days a graveyard occupied the site of the present Metropolitan Power Company. The tombstones (long since removed to the newer Catholic Cemetery on the north slope of Neversink) perpetuated the names of the early faithful, the Reppliers, Felixes, Seyferts and Keffers who had heard mass in the same chapel when under the letter of the English law the celebrating priest could have been fined and imprisoned.

Andreas/Andrew Fricker

Andrew Fricker was a private in the Revolution. (Pa. Arc., IV, p. 605.) "He may have been the 2nd Lt. of the First Co. of the First Batt'l of Lancaster Co. Militia, under Col. Philip Greenawalt in 1777." (Rec. of American Catholic Historical Soc., Sept. 1910, Vol. XXI, No. 3.)

"We find that Sophia Fricker was the daughter of one Andreas Fricker who was a 1st Lt. in Capt. Casper Stover's Co., Col. Greenawalt's Reg., 1st Batt'l, Lebanon Co., Pa." (As written to me by Mrs. Elder. Her source: DAR Lineage Books, Vol. 116, p. 131-2.)

The following was written to me by Mr. George Irgang, 1126 Spring St., Michigan City, Ind. 46360 in 1974. PSJ

"It is obvious that we have two Andrew Frickers. One was a Catholic and an innkeeper in Reading. He died in 1796. The other was a Lutheran who lived for a time in Tulpehocken but died in Huntingdon Co., in 1816. This latter man and not the innkeeper must be the soldier from Lebanon Co., although Lebanon did not exist until 1813. When Berks Co. was established from Lancaster Co. in 1752, the dividing line ran across the farm of Adam Dieffenbach of Tulpehocken, so that Michael's property remained in Lancaster Co. Then in 1785 this portion of Tulpehocken became part of Dauphin Co. In 1813 Lebanon Co. was taken off Dauphin, so that this portion of Tulpehocken (including Trinity Reformed Church of Tulpehocken)now lies in Marion Twp. Lebanon Co. It is therefore possible that some Fricker records are at Lancaster, some at Harrisburg and others at Huntingdon.

Likewise there were two Sophia Frickers. The Sophia who married James Henry Bottorff in 1776 would be at least 24 years older than Elisabeth Fricker Rogers who was born in 1782. It is unlikely then (unlikely) that she is the Sophia Pottorff mentioned in that will of 1813.

I do have a theory about the Fricker-Dieffenbach relationship. Michael Dieffenbach had a son Benjamin, who was married twice. By his first wife, Magdalena_____, Benjamin had at least two children; Benjamin, Jr. born 1783, and Elizabeth born 1785 who married Jacob Stuart. By his second wife, Charlotte, Benjamin, Sr. had three more children; Ludwig b. 1794, Salome b. 1797 and Daniel b. 1799. Shortly after the name disappears and I can find nothing further about them. I'm guessing that the first wife Magdalena was the Molly Deafabough of Andrew Freaker's will, and elder daughter of an old neighbor."

The following was also sent by Mr. Irgang.

9 Nov. 1782 Michael Dieffenbach and wife Margaret sp. for Elizabeth, d/o Andrew Fricker and wife, Maria Magdalena. (Christ Luth. Church, Tulpehocken)

SIGN OF ROYAL BLOOD.

Mark of the Hohenzollerns Found in America.
Dark Stripe in White hair.

Famous Maryland Family related to the Reigning House of Prussia--Prince Henry noted Distinguishing mark in a lady whom he met at the White House--tracing the relationship.

(Washington,D.,C., Post March 23, 1902)

Silvery gray hair but with a plainly marked streak of the original dark running directly through the center from forehead to neck-- that is the family mark of the Hohenzollerns according to Prince Henry of Prussia. And It was the means of bringing about as interesting interview with his Highness and information that may interest some of the old families of Maryland and their descendants.

A lady stopping in Washington during his recent visit was amoun the fortunate ones who met the royal guest at the White House on the occasion of hey first visit, and happened to be presented at a moment when he was at leisure.

"But ah" said the prince, with his pleasant smile, glancing at her snowy pompadoured hair as he shook her hand, " do you know that you have the mark of the Hohenzollerns?"

"Yes, your highness,", she replied, "Ihave been told so, and I am quite proud of it, It is a peculiarity which runs through nearly every branch of our family . We turn gray early, and that dark streak remains plainly visible until the snows of old age cover it at last. mother has it strongly marked; also her father and grandfather, for he it was who claimed g first cousinship to your royal grandfather, the late Emperor William, through his mother."

"Is that so?" excalimed the prince, seeming quite interested, "Yes, I remember to have heard that we formerly had relatives living in Upper Maryland, near the Pennsylvania line. A branch of the Shorbs, were they not?"

"Yes,your royal highness, and the Sneeringers, I believe It is a family tradition with us that Great-grandfather Shorb had quite a packet of letters he had received from his royal cousin, the late Emperor William, of which he was very proud, and which are still preserved somewhere among the family heirlooms. In those days Frederick county and Lower Pennsylvania were settled almost entirely by the germans. The English language was seldom heard among them, and many of the houses and barns which they built still reamin to attest the solidity and the Faderland styles of architecture to which they adhered."

"Well, this is quite interesting; and, indeed, I am very glad to have met one of my American cousins with the Hohenzollern mark. If you wish I will send you a copy of the royal family tree and a picture of the Emperor and myself upon my return home."

And this is why a cetain lady of royal lineage thanks her Hohenzollern mark for what will always be a pleasant remembrance. If, therefore, you notice this peculiar mark center stripe among your silver-haired friends, or possess it your self, hunt up your family records and perhaps you may find that you, too, have a blood right to the mark of the Hohenzollerns. For the descendants of the original ancestors

Johann (or Jacob) Shorb . ...the sturdy Germans of that day being noted for the size and healthfulness of their families; while three or four generations with their offspring and intermarriage would serve to multiply the sum total to a product almost unbelievable in these days.

Johann (or Jacob) Shorb, so the family tradition goes, married a daughter of the royal line of the Hohenzollerns and brought her to America, settling in what was ther Upper Marryland. He was a man of conside able wealth and the owner of a large fleet of trading vessels, all the fittings of which were marked with the royal coat-of-arms. A few of there belongings are still preserved as heirlooms among the family, as well as a nember of pieces of silver plate and china, bearin g the same markings.

A large tract of land was purchased by this Johann Shorb and a confortable home established, where for years he dwelt in peace with his royal wife and brought up a good sized family of children.

Of the most of these little record can be found. the aforesaid family tradition dealing only with a few of the children, the ones probable who took most interest in genealogy. Tow sons are mentioned, John and Jacob, and two daughters, one of whom presumably married a Fick, and the other a Sneeringer, these two names being connected with the royal branch in the story.

In the meantime, however, trouble camt to owners of the Upper Marylandlands through the indifinite wording of William Penn's grant, gives some yeers later. Much confusion and some strife ensued, many being obliged to pay Penn's agent a second time for their homesteads. This new division caused a shifting of the state line, and placedmany of these settlers in Pennsylvania, so that both states may be said to have been the early home of the Shorbs and others

Later John Shorb, the son of old Johann, married his cousin, Catharine Fink, and movedover the line into Frederick county, Md., where it is said their old home, called Happy Rest, for years bore the coat-of-arms upon the door. This was the great grandfather Shorb, to whom the lady referred in her conversation with Prince Henry as claiming cousinship with the late Emperor William and receiving letters from him. to this John Shorb, and his wife Catharine, were born a numerous family, ten children , one son and nine daughters reaching maturity.

The son, James Shorb, became a doctor and married Margaret McNeal, the daughter of a wealthy sea captain and a French lady, formerly Miss cowans, who was once a maid of honor to the Empress Josephine, it is said. Dr. Shorb and his wife moved to a beautiful estate near Emmitsburg, Md., which they Called Clairveaux. Here they live for many years, leaving in their turn six children to perpetuate the family name.

Dr. Shorb was a man of marked character and noble bearing, and in his time was called the handsomest man in Frederick county, his likeness to the pictures of the Emperor William I being often remarked upon wit in the family circle. Of his six children, Maria Frances married Frank Stone, of St. Mary county, Md., and left eight children; Adelaid married Frank Tiernan, of Pittsburg and left one child;
Nina married Harry Neale, of Baltimore, and left one child;

Campbell married Miss Dallas and moved to Los Angeles, where several children were born; Samuel McNeal died without issue and Dr. Barth married Miss Wilson, of California where he too had removed.

Of the nine sisters of Dr. James Shorb, all beautiful women and noted for their elegant manners and courtly bearing, one married a Baugher and left several children and grandchildren well-known residents of Baltimore and Frederick county. One of these youngsters was in Europe some twelve years ago, and was most graciously received by the present Emperor William II who had then succeeded his father. She mentioned among other things the recent death of one of the Misses Shorb, the Emperor took up some beautiful flowers which were near, and handing them to her, said; "Convey these to our bereaved cousin with our sympathy for her loss." The flowers were later pressed, and are still treasured by her children.

Another daughter of the original nine married a Mathias and left several children, among them a daughter who afterward married Mr. Repplier, of Philadelphia, she being the mother of Miss Agnes Repplier, the brilliant young essayist who has made a name for herself in literature.

A third Miss Shorb married a Davis and moved to Boston where her daughter, Miss Davis, afterward became the wife of Patrick Donahue, the well-known Publisher of the Boston Pilot.

A forth daughter married an Elder, their children being now among the prominent citizens of Baltimore, New Orleans and St. Louis. Another daughter married a Crabster, another a Hostetter, a seventh a Fink, and an eighth an Ormsdorf; children and grandchildren from all of which marriages are still living in Baltimore and elsewhere, being well-known in their respective localities. The ninth daughter, Miss Harriet Shorb, became Sister Ann Alexis of the Sisters of Charity, and was for years prominent of religious circles, founding St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum at Boston, among her other labors.
Mrs. Ann Murray, Mrs. Ella Lee, and Mrs. Moore, all prominent in Baltimore society, are also descendants of the Shorb family through another branch, presumably Jacob Shorb, the brother of John; and the Rev., Basil Shorb, formerly paster at Gettysburg now, dead, belonged to the same family.

Of the Finks and the Sneeringers, the other branches of the original tree, according to the family tradition, numereous descendants are to be found in Maryland and in other states. Mr. Joseph Fink, of Baltimore the father of Rev. F. X. Fink the pastor of St. Aloysius in this city is a double relation through both his father and his motherm who was a Miss Shorb The Finks are a large family and prominent socially, having relatives in Boston, New York and elsewhere.

To prove this first cousinship with Emperor William, as th tradition claims, through His mother, it would benecessary for his mother to have been a sister of either the father of William III, King of Prussia--or of his mother, Queen Louise or possibly of some one of the wives of Fredericks younger brothers, of whom he had three, as well as three sisters.

Queen Louise had one brother, three sisters and one half-brother. Her two elder sisters married German noblemen, while the younger, the gay fredericks, married Prince Louis a younger son of the King. He died, however, after a few years and his widow married several times afterward.

If the relationship comes through the Queen it should prove doubly interesting, for the charming personality of Queen Louise of Prussia is ont of the agreeable studies of the royal line of the Hohnezollerns. Left motherless at a tender age, Louise of Meckenburgh was brought up, with her sisters and brothers, by her grandmother, the Landgravine Marie, at Darnstadt. Their life was full of the simpleinnocent gayety of healthy childhood, although the plainest and quietest character. Money was scarce and economy reigned with as iron hand. Louise is said to have proudly related in after life how she fitted and sewed her own silken shoes during a special ebb in the finances.

At sixteen she made her debut at Frankfort and was at once the center of admiration, bith for her girlish loveliness and the sweetness of her character. Here a little later, she together with her sister, Frederika, she met the crown prince, at .... with both couples, and the double wedding followed within the year.

Four years later, upon the death of his father the crown prince became Frederick WilliamIII of Prussia, being twenty-seven years of age, while the young queen was but twenty-one [illegible]ng after the disgusting profligate and dishonorable reign [illegible]rederick William II, the domestic happiness and high ideas the yough soverighs won the hearts of the simple, honest erman people, who still revere the memory of this noble, loving woman above all the queens of Prussia.

After the early and lamented death of Queen Louise, who died of cancer in 1811, leaving seven children, the King contracted a morganatic marriage with his cousin, Augusta of Hohenzollern, and it is possible that it was through her line that the connection of the American branck may come, though that would make the kinship more distant than is claimed in the tradition.

One Point, however, that would seem to make this theory teneable is the fact of the marriage being a morganatic one, though the King was a widower and eligible to matrimony. This seems strange when her birth was equal to his own, but would be readily explained if Augusts of Hohenzollern was a Catholic.

There are two family lines of the Hohenzollerns distinguished as the royal line, which is necessarily Protestant, and the princely line, which though descended from the same ancester Rudolph Graf von Zollern, forfeited the right to the thro by remaining true to the Catholic Faith. The royal lin not for some generations been allowed to inter marr princely line for state reasons, so if the King wed his cousin Augusta, and she belonging to the a morganatic marriage, which would be legal anc by religion, bu would carry no right os success would seem to be the only possible solution.

The members of the royal and princely lines ca other "cousins" by courtesy, and there is a strong between them.

Moreover, if Agusta was a Catholic Hohenzoller would seem to closely connect her with the Ame for the wife of Johann Shorb was evidently of faith, as is shown by her bringing up her numerous family therein, and by the steadfastness with which the majority of their descendants have adhered to its doctrins ever since.

The royal family tree will, however, it is hoped, clear up all these vague points and enable the interested to fill in the missing branches of their own vine and fig trees, which in these days of genealogical fever, of fevor, will be deemed "A consumation devoutly to be wished".

The Hohenzollerns take their name from the heights of Zollern, the old ancestral seat in the Suabila Alps-- Dark-streak Hohen-Zollern; but the history of the dark streak running through the hair, the mark of the Hohenzollerns, of of the legend attached thereto, cannot be definitely ascertained at present, interesting though it would doubtless prove.

The early Shorbs were apparently little interested in genealogy. One can find very little printed material. Duplicate names have made it difficult to trace the various families through court records. The many spellings of the name, Shaub, Shoup, Shorp, Sharp, Scharben, Schorb, Shurb, Shorb, add to the problem.

It is hoped that this account will inspire others to help in uncovering facts concerning the family.

Throughout this book, the source of information is given in footnotes.

HOW IT BEGAN

To M.Pauline Shorb goes the credit for instigating the research which makes this booklet possible. Being a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution she wished to establish a paternal line. Questioning her father about his father's family, he replied,"My grandfather, James Shorb, was brought up by someone outside the family after his mother's death. He had a sister, Ann Eliza, who married Joseph Ralston They went to Defiance,Ohio, many years ago. Grandfather married Lydia McIntosh. They are buried in the Sixteen Cemetery."

A letter to the Ralston Family,Defiance,Ohio, brought a reply from Clarence Cummins with information about his great grandmother and with the photo of a nun, thought to be Ann Eliza's sister. Father Galagher of the St.John's Church Canton,Ohio, to whom Pauline took the photo,identified the nun as a Sister of Charity. A letter to the Mother House brought more valuable and interesting information. Mrs.Carroll Alexis Rider furnished the Bible records and two letters written by Sister Ann Alexis,the Sister of Charity,to her niece, Ann Rider.

Others to whom credit must be given are: Edith Shorb Steele, Edith Shorb Lipps, Mildred Shorb, Col.Carleton Coulter,Jr., J.Brian Eby,Luke Rider.

THE SHORB FAMILY

Frederick, Johanes and Paulus Schorb(Shurp) immigrated to this country in 1749, according to a passenger list of the Priscilla which arrived in Philadelphia September 11, 1749.

One account says three brothers, John, Jacob, and Anthony Shorb, arrived in this country settling in Pennsylvania; one in Hanover, York County, another in York County near Hanover, and the third in Goshenhoppen, Berks County.

Family tradition says the Shorbs arrived in America on the same boat as the Vanderbilt family.

At the present time, we have succeeded in tracing our family back to John Shorb, born 1761, establishing the birth-date by the age on the tombstone. His parents may have been one of the above but at present we have found no proof of this. Records and documents have been found proving the following biographical sketches.

John and Catherine(Fink)Shorb lived im Maryland, near what is now Emmitsburg. They had tem children (Plate I): Catherine, Elizabeth, John, Mary, Sarah, Jimy, James A., Francis,, Julianna and Harriet.

Catherine married Leaven Barnes; Elizabeth, Dr. Ephraim Davis; John, Anna Davis; Mary, Jacob Mathias; Sarah, who was baptized Salome, was first married to Paul Rider and then to Jacob Hostetter; James A. married Margaret McNeal; Julianna, Joseph Baugher. Harriet who was baptized Henrica, became Sister Ann Alexis of the Sisters of Charity. [1]

The family home was named San Marino, supposedly for the Republic of San Marino where the early Shorbs may have lived or, because of trade with the country, for the Shorbs are said to have owned a large fleet of sailing vessels. [2] There are references to a home called "Happy Retreat", but the location has not been established. San Marino and Clairvaux, a later home, are known by these names today making it easy to locate them. [3]

In the Story of the Mountain, Mr. Shorb is pictured as a respected and influential member of the community. [4] His wife, Catherine, died in 1837. Mr. Shorb died in 1851.

3. The present owners know little of the history of the houses. San Marino has been changed with additions to the original building. Several small buildings appear very old.

JOHN SHORB, eldest son of John and Catherine (Fink) Shorb, was born Oct. 24, 1789 1. Little has been learned of his early life. In 1810, On Aug. 5, he married Anna Davis in the Conewago Chapel, near Littlestown, Pennsylvania 2. The exact location of John and Anna's home is not known but was probably near the San Marino estate in Maryland.

In 1819, John sold most of his household goods and stock preparing to head West 3. With his wife and five children, Mary Catherine, Ann C., John F., Francis Cecelia and Harriet, he settled in Stark County, Ohio, near Canton 4.

Five children, Ann Eliza, Sarah, James, Thomas and Margaret were born in Stark County(Plate I C). The mother died when the youngest was three 5. Ann Celestine, who had married Silvester Rider, cared for her younger brothers and sisters with the exception of Ann Eliza and James who may have been raised by an aunt. The Riders moved to Wayne County, Illinois, in 1843 6. In 1843, Ann Eliza and her husband, Joseph Ralston, moved to Defiance Ohio, Thomas settled near Aden, Illinois 7. James remained in Stark County.

John Shorb lived with Ann and Silvester Rider. He died February 14, 1861, at the age of 71 and is buried in the Buckeye Cemetary, north of Fairfield, Illinois.

SARAH SHORB was the fourth eldest daughter of John and Catherine(Fink)Shorb of E mmitsburg,Maryland. She was born in York County,Pennsylvania,February 19,1793, and baptized M arch 2,1793 at historic Conewago Chapel. [1]

On April 27,1813,she married Paulus Reuter of Adams Co. Pennsylvania, son of Jacob Von Reuter(formerly Baron Von Reuter) and Martalena Palminist Von Reuter of Switzerland. [2]

Sarah and Paulus followed her brother,John, and his family to Stark County,Ohio in 1825. Apparently,at this time, the name Reuter was changed to Rider. They had nine children: Sylvester,Mary Ann,Louis DuBarth,James Shorb,Agnes Cecelia,Louisa Maria,Catherine Elizabeth,John Jacob and Joseph Paul. The last five of these children were born in or near Canton,Ohio.

The father,Paul Rider, died August 24,1829 and was buried in or near Canton,Ohio.

On February 13,1831,Sarah Shorb Rider married Jacob Hostetter,Jr.,who came to Stark County in 1822 from Hanover, Pennsylvania. [3] Their children were: Sarah,Harriet Alexis, Gustayus Alexis. Harriet and Gustavus were named for their aunt, Sister Ann Alexis,Sister of Charity.

Jacob Hostetter,Jr. was a son of the Honorable Jacob Hostetter of Hanover,Pennsylvania. He was associated with his father in the clock business;his father manufacturing the large chronometer known as the "Hostetter Clock". JacoB's father and mother came to Ohio in 1825. Father and son continued in business at New Lisbon and Canton,Ohio.

Sarah Shorb Rider Hostetter died September 2,1849 at Canton,Ohio.

JAMES A. SHORB, youngest son of John and Catherine(Fink) Shorb, was a doctor practicing in upper Frederick County, Maryland. (Plate I) He was known as the Beloved Physician of the Mountain and, was said to have been a very handsome man. For forty years he was the attending physician at Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Maryland, where he had been a student.[1]

Dr. James and his wife, Margaret McNeal, lived at San Marino and, later, at Clairvaux. They had five children:[2] Adeline, Nina, Campbell, DeBarth and Daniel McNeal. Adeline married James Tiernan, Nina, Henry Neal.

Campbell, who married Sophie Dallas, went to California to live. DeBarth went to live with him. Here he met and, in 1867, married Maria Jesus Wilson, the daughter of Ramona and Don Benita Wilson and the grand-daughter of Don Bernardo Yorba.

In 1869, Wilson conveyed a parcel of land to his daughter and her husband. Here they built their home(1877) calling it San Marino in memory of Shorb's boyhood home in Maryland.[3] In 1902, Henry Huntington purchased the Shorb property. The Shorb home was demolished in 1906 and a Georgian-Colonial residence erected.[3] This property is now known as the Huntington Library and Art Gallery, San Marino, California.

Dr. James was like his father; he was a respected and influential member of the community. He died Oct. 31, 1867, and is buried in St. Joseph's cemetery, Emmitsburg, Maryland.

HARRIET SHORB, daughter of John and Catherine (Fink) Shorb was baptized Henrica Im Conewago Chapel on October 11,1804. She attended St.Joseph Academy entering sometime after January,1821. Harriet was the youngest of her family,and possessed an amiable,gentle disposition;her gay and refined manners were accompanied by a certain dignity and modesty. All indicated an attractive worldly future,but Harriet had chosen otherwise[1]. In 1825, she entered the Community of the Sisters of Charity at Emmitsburg,Maryland and received the Habit on August 15,1825. She became Sister Ann Alexis. After missions in Washington and Baltimore,in 1832 she opened a school and orphanage in Boston,which later became known as St.Vincents Asylum. She remained here until her death which occured on March 19,1875[2].

This order,chosen by Harriet,was founded in Paris in 1633 by St.Vincent de Paul and St.Louis de Marillac. It is a colorful order,the sisters wear picturesque habits of blue with starched white winged bonnets or cornets.The American branch was founded by Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton,in Baltimore, in1808. Later,the group moved to Emmitsburg,Maryland,where St.Joseph's Academy was founded.

It is said that Mother Seton and her group stayed at the Shorb home when they arrived in Emmitsburg. This is quite possible as the Shorbs were a devout Catholic family.Perhaps it was this contact with Mother Seton which influenced Harriet to enter the order.

Ann Eliza Shorb, daughter of John and Anna(Davis)Shorb, married Joseph Ralston, a native of Dauphin County, Pennsylvania,[1] in 1839. They lived in Massillon, Ohio. In 1843, Ann Eliza and Joseph decided to seek their fortune in the new land of northwestern Ohio. With their young son, William Henry they journeyed by canal boat to Cleveland, Ohio and embarked on the steamer "Superior" for Toledo, Ohio. From Toledo, they took the canal boat "Red Lion" to Defiance, Ohio, arriving there October 10, 1843.

Ann Eliza and her husband were truly pioneers. He cleared his land and with the help of neighbors, from two to six miles away, erected a log house. They lived here eight years, selling out in 1851 and moving to Defiance, where Joseph engaged in the general merchandising and produce business[2].

They had seven children; (Plate I C 6) Ann M., William H., Sarah J., Orlando L., L. Clayton, Clara A., and Lake Erie. Of these, three died; Ann M., in infancy, Clayton and Clara, at twenty-three. The others married and raised families; Sarah located at Denver, Colorado, William, Orlando and Lake remaining in and near Defiance, Ohio.

Joseph Ralston died October 22, 1895 at the age of 77. Ann Eliza died September 22, 1922. Had she lived until November 1 she would have been 102.

James Shorb, son of John and Anna(Davis) Shorb, married Lydia McIntosh, daughter of John McIntosh, Sr. and Elizabeth Donat. They lived at Pigeon Run, settlement west of Massillon, Ohio. In 1849, James and a cousin, John Davis, joined the "49ers" hoping to make a fortune in gold. It is believed that Lydia resided with James' family in Illinois while he was gone. James returned without great riches and without his faithful horse that had carried him safely across the Mississippi River. His wonderful horse had been sold for his "grub stake"; he always regretted the sale.

James and Lydia had nine children. (Plate IC 8) Five of the children died at an early age. Cyrus, eight, Clara, four, Mary, three, and Lucinda, one, died of fever within a period of nineteen days. Marion died at the age of ten.

The others married and raised families. Charles, who suffered with asthma, went to Oklahoma to find a more healthful climate. Henry lived on a farm at Shorb's Crossing, west of Navarre, Ohio. Azariah lived in Massillon, Ohio. Simon made his home in New Philadelphia, Ohio.

James married a second time. His wife died at child birth. It is believed the son was raised by his mother's family.

Ann C. Shorb, daughter of John and Anna(Davis)Shorb, was born in 1812 in Maryland. When she was seven, or eight, years old her family came to Stark County, Ohio. After her mother died, in 1835, Ann seems to have been the one who looked after the younger children. In 1836, she married Sylvester Rider.

Sylvester Rider was the son of Paul and Sarah(Shorb) Rider. He was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania, May 16, 1814. Later, his family lived in Frederick County, Maryland; in 1825, they came to Stark County, Ohio.

In 1842, Ann and her husband moved to Wayne County, Illinois. Ann and Sylvester had three children then; Lewis J., Charles F., and Sarah Alexis. They also took Ann's youngest brother and sister, Thomas and Margaret, and Sylvester's brother, Joseph Paul, with them. Having decided to engage in sheep-raising and wool growing, Sylvester settled on a farm near Fairfield, Illinois, which he developed and improved so thoroughly that he obtained a premium for the best improved farm in the state. Later, he sold the farm and, in 1865, moved to Flora, Clay County, Illinois.[1]

Ann wrote such glowing accounts of their location that her father and her brother, John, and his family joined them in Wayne County.[2]

The Riders had eleven children: Lewis J., Charles F., Sarah, Sylvester, Charles L., Joseph, Alexis, Medora, Edward, Carroll, and Margaret. Sylvester, the father, died August 10, 1887 and Ann, February 1, 1896.

The Miles family at Hayland, the Tierses at Thornbrook, the Mennings at San Marino, the Shorbs at Clairvaux among others opened houses and heart to the professors and their visitors. Bishops and priests came to stay for a spell with those families, and at least at Thornbrook there was a domestic chapel in which the Divine Sacrifice was offered. The Shrivers later with their delightful dramatic entertainments, the Dielmans with their classic concerts, and Dr. Shorb with his dog and gun made life around Mt. St. Mary's glide peacefully and pleasantly along, while conversazioni of the clerical and lay teachers after dinner were often supplemented by similar professional reunions at the houses of the professors, as well as by the hospitality of the Vincentian priests at the village.

Vol. 1, p. 508
Father John Shahahan, '23, of New York, wrote May 28, 1856 saying he was sorry "ye sold the lowlands below the college to Dr. Shorb". (Dr. Shorb lived at San Marino, and it seems obtained from the college, of which he was the attending physician, the lands round what is now known as Clairvaux)

Vol. 1, p. 132

Father Dubois writes to Father Egan, who was on a collecting tour - "good Mr. Shorb, hearing you had left Philadelphia, took trouble to go there in hopes to find out where you had applied, that he might apply to the Germans in Philadelphia, to many of whom he is well known. He collected upwards of $1000. about Conewago and expected to get as much if not more in Philadelphia.

If you choose you might leave the Germans out and I could prevail upon good old Mr. Shorb to go back and try his success among them---you know the influence of a German among the Germans ---he is very pressing and by his age has much influence among the people . . . They collected $1500. in Baltimore."

Vol. II, p. 78

Doctor Shorb was the third physician who had the care of the Mountain and St. Joseph's . . . Dr. Shorb's first assistant had been his brother-in-law, Dr. Felix McNeal; then Dr. J. Grove and Dr. Timothy Sweeny.

Vol. II, p. 108

Amongst others who added to the enjoyment of life on the Mountain and in the valley was Dr. Shorb of Clairvaux, the "Beloved physician", and enthusiastic follower of the hounds. This gentleman and his wife occupied Clairvaux and, so great was the attraction at Commencement time, that they tell how up to one hundred persons would then put up at the house, content to sleep on the floor if only they could stay in this delightful place.

Vol. 1, p. 33 Notes:

Dr. William Seton, Ex '55, eldest son of Captain William Seton, who was a student in 1809, described the college life in his father's time. We borrow from the "Mountaineer," April 1904:

"It was a dark night, and the air a little moist, and just the kind of weather for the scent to lie well. When the youngsters heard this they rubbed their hands in glee, and began to count their opossums in advance, while Shorb exclaimed:

" 'I do wish my whole life could be a possum-hunt.' 'Well, I reckon these be your happiest days,' observed Pompey, as they entered the forest at the foot of the mountain. 'They would be the happiest days for me if my sister were here,' said Taney, who was constantly thinking of Agnes, his dear Agnes. 'I don't see the good of studying Latin grammar,' put in Miles. 'Do you Pompey?' 'Can't answer that,' replied the venerable African. 'Twouldn't, of course, be no good for me. But I'm only a poor nigger; you may become an archbishop some day.'

"This remark was greeted by a peal of laughter, and for many a day afterwards Miles was known among his school fellows as the "Archbishop." The first opossum was captured right at the back of what is to-day the college God's-acre, and it was taken alive by Taney, who, braving the animal's sharp teeth, climbed the tree, and unwinding its tail from the branch round which it was wound like a snake, let it drop into the bag which Pompey held open underneath.

"In a few minutes they emerged from the gloom of the forest and found themselves at a rock which stood on the northeast brow of the Catoctin. This spot was afterwards "Indian Lookout;" for seated by the fire, which was not at all unpleasant this moist, chilly night, was an Indian. "Don't be scared," spoke the latter, for the boys looked a little startled at the grim, dusky visage turned upon them. "You've got out of the trail, have you? Don't be scared." "We have been hunting 'possums," replied Taney. "Is it far from here to Mr. Joseph Elder's?" "Some distance. I'll show you the trail which leads down to the valley," said Tobias, or Uncle Toby, as he had been christened by the people of Emmitsburg, whither he went now and then to sell cigars, or "tobies" as the college boys called them long after the old Indian himself had gone to the happy hunting-ground. (Indians still lingered about Split Rock, Cosy Dell, Crystal Spring, Ammandale, or other beautiful spots even up to the nineteenth century.)

"'Well, is this your home?' inquired Shorb. 'Yes' 'Yes!, answered Tobias. 'My wigwam is near by. I am the last of my tribe and I cultivate a patch of tobacco, which in winter-time I make into cigars.' 'Indeed!' exclaimed Taney. 'Smoke?' said the Indian, offering the boys a handful of tobies. 'I have promised Mr. Dubois not to smoke,' replied Taney. 'and I will not break my promise.' 'Nor I,' said Shorb. 'I know Mr. Dubois,' said Tobias. 'All the folks about here know him. He's very good, and very strong too. He can walk most as far as I could when I was his age. But he isn't here now. Do try my tobacco.' Again the boys shook their heads, and the Indian, after staring at them a moment in wonder, rose to his feet and guided them safely down the mountain.

JOSEPH RALSTON, History of Defiance County, Ohio
Warner, Beers and Co. 1883

Partial Account: Joseph Ralston was born in Hanover, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, June 20, 1818. His father, William Ralston, was born in Mount Joy, York County, Pennsylvania, March 26, 1791; his mother, Jane (Rough) Ralston, was born in Hanover, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, December 11, 1797; they were married July 17, 1817; had a family of ten children, viz: Joseph, Harriet, Maria, George A., Henry P., William R., Jane, Susan, Rebecca A., and James. Of these, two died, Jane at sixteen years of age, and Maria at forty-two. In 1824, his parents moved to Lebanon, Lebanon County, in the same state, where he attended the Lebanon Academy, graduating from that institution in 1831. In March, 1892 he with his parents started for Ohio, and after seventeen days travel overland arrived at Massillon, Ohio, on the 10th day of April, and soon after settled on a farm near by, where his parents died---Mr. Ralston, August 10, 1858, and Mrs. Ralston, May 30, 1868. Joseph assisted on the farm until the age of eighteen when he commenced teaching school, and continued at that vocation six years. June 23, 1839, he was married to Ann E. Shorb, of Stark County, Ohio, whose parents were born in Frederick County, Maryland, and immigrated to Stark County, Ohio in 1820, where her Mother died in August, 1833. Her father removed to Fairfield, in Wayne County, Illinois, in 1847, near which place he died in 1868. They had a family of ten children, viz: Ann C., John F., Frances C., Harriet, Ann E., Sarah, James, Thomas, and Margaret. Mr. Ralston remained in Stark County about three years after his marriage, when he concluded to seek his fortune in the West.

From JOSEPH RALSTON'S DIARY (Husband of Ann Eliza Shorb)

1874, Aug.-11. George (Joseph's brother) came to Massillon for me and we went to James Shorb's on "Pigeon Run", did not find him at home, drove to West Massillon and found him. This was a distressing hot day. Ther. at 102 in the shade.

"Defiance Woman, Century Old Eve of Election Day, Will Take Advantage of Woman's Suffrage

Mrs. Ann E. Ralston, better known to Defiance folks as "Grandma" Ralston, celebrates her hundredth birthday at her homestead on "Quality Hill", north of Defiance, the eve of election day, Monday, Nov. first. To wait a century before casting her first vote has not in the least dampened "Grandma's" enthusiastic desire. She will make the journey to the polls Tuesday, and, if she has her way, will be "an early morning" voter.

When asked concerning politics this centenarian's eye brightens and she at once becomes much interested.

"If God permits I'll go sure and vote the straight Republican ticket," she always states when questioned.

"I do not care so much as far as myself is concerned about the honor of voting at this age, but it is for old "Quality Hill" that I am desirous of going. Then, when that is done I don't care how soon I must go," she continues, telling that she will be willing to pass on and let someone else take her place. However, she is in fair health in spite of her advanced age and, no doubt, will enjoy a much longer life.

She is now living in the old homestead on Ralston Ave., which was named after the family. At this place she has lived 71 years of her one hundred. The last years of her long happy life are being spent with her son, one of seven children, Lake E.

During the century of life she has spanned great changes have come to the community. She remembers when Ralston Ave., of which she is so proud, was but a path thru the uncleared woods. Later she viewed the road as a corduroy, bordered by tossing fields of Indian maize. Then still later, its other improvements, until it is now a leading artery to and from Defiance. When she moved into her present home, she named the place "Quality Hill", for it overlooked the beautiful Maumee River and canal, about which nestled the budding frontier town.

When reflecting concerning those days a far away satisfied look brightens her eyes and she speaks of them as the "happy days."

She says "We were all so happy. There were only a few of us and we all knew each other. We had 'house warmings' and various social events when friendliness appealed to all." Then we would take lanterns and go to church and we lived contentedly together."

Mrs. Ralston has but few senile characteristics. At times she is light-hearted and given to wit. While speaking of the changes that have come to Defiance she said, "I saw the first lights that were brought here, and the first imrpoved means of conveyance, then the churches, banks, etc. Yes I have even seen the Maumee River double itself" (referring laughingly to the change that resulted from the erection of the State Dam.) In those days the river was crossed by ferry at the foot of Clinton Street.

Moreover, although she is delightfully enthusiastic about those days of happiness she said that she is satisfied to pass on now after achieving her hundredth year and be content that others enjoy the benefits that have come to this territory thru improvement.

This aged woman accredits her hearty life at this advanced age to be due to her sturdy out-of-door life. She was one of ten children many of whom died of lung trouble. She tells that she worked in the woods with her husband. Interesting are the tales she relates of her first years in Defiance County. Coming from the east, her husband desired to return for household goods but feared to leave her alone with her children. However she urged him to go as she would be capable of caring for those left behind. During her husband's absence she would remain awake throughout the nights and keep a fire in order to scare the wolves away from the log cabin.

Her life was truly that of the sturdy American pioneer. Until the last year she has been able to get about the home quite well but is now bed-ridden although still conscious. Most of her faculties are well preserved.

POOR COPY

She was born in Stark County, Ohio, November 1, 1820. Her parents were from Frederick County, Maryland. She married Joseph Ralston, a native of Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, June 23, 1839. In October 1843, they concluded to come to Northwestern Ohio. The went by canal boat from Massillon to Cleveland with their first child, the late Dr. William Henry Ralston after a somewhat stormy passage on Lake Erie they arrived in Toledo, on the old steamer Superior. The trip from Toledo to Defiance was made on the canal boat "Red Lion" and ended October 10, 1843. Here they met an acquaintance the late Samuel P. Cameron, who induced them to settle in Washington township. They occupied a log cabin on Mr. Cameron's land, now owned by Wm. H. Baker, in the north part of Ney. The Ralstons bought 80 acres of the southwest corner of Tiffin township, on Mud Creek and became the first settlers along that stream. They cleared the land and prepared it for cultivation. As the season was very wet their help had to be gathered the fifth time before the work could be accomplished. All the laborers were called from two to five mile distances.

They lived but a few years in Washington township before coming to the present homestead situated on Ralston Ave.

My very Ann

I cannot tell you how delighted I was to hear from you. Almost every day I was in hopes the lady would call. I was quite unwell the morning she came and I forgot to ask her the street she was staying--yesterday sister told me she had called and I was in bed with a slight attack of cramp cholic. I shall certainly call on her and give her a little package for you and now that you know my address do write often--You want to know something about your relatives. Well let me begin by your Aunt Julia, she has only two children alive Alexis and Constantine the latter is married and has five children the two oldest are at school. The boy at Fordham College and the girl at the Sacred Heart his wife is a convert and a very nice person. Alexis an old Batchelor. (sic) Mr. Baugher lives in Frederick retired from business he is one of the best Catholics I ever knew. the death of Imogene was the cause of his conversion. He lost his youngest son in the last war his name was Fenwick after Bishop Fenwick of Boston. He has had many Crosses but God afflicts to bless. Your Uncle James is still alive and is looking very well I saw him this time last year. He is so like your grandpapa--all his boys are from him. His oldest boy is married and lives in California his youngest de Barth lives with him in Cal. the other McNeal died last June from exposure during the war his death was very edifying. Nina his youngest child married a young man in Baltimore named Neal one of the best families, so pious really I look on him as a living Saint--You remember your Aunt Kitty Barnes well she is dead nearly three years ago Ann her only child who married a Brawner is now married a second time to Joseph Lives her daughter was married not long ago to a Dr. who lives in Machanicstown she has a little boy ten years old--Now your Aunt Betsey Davis is still alive and is enjoying good health all her children are married her youngest daughter married a Mr. Donohue of this City and I assure you she has one of the best of husbands I ever knew and is very wealthy and generous to a fault he is a self made man--she will call on them with me as soon as I am able to go out if you were to write her she could often send you some papers and little books her husband keeps a publishing establishment-- Your Aunt Mary Mathias is still alive and all her family are well and doing well John Thomas her eldest son and indeed her only son is living in Baltimore William the Dr. died about two years ago. He married Mr. Swope's daughter of Taneytown you remember him well. Now I think I have given you all the news of the family--I suppose you know your Aunt Sally Clamson, your mothers sister married old John Mathias.

She became a Catholic and is still living John is dead she is very rich and as close as ever. Dear Ann what would I not vie give to see you and Sylvester but this happiness willnot be gratified in this world so let us live in such a manner that we may be unitied in a happy Eternity---I was gratified in hearing you say that you have tried to give your children a Catholic education what is all the wealth compared to our Holy Religion I hope you will soon have a Catholic Church in your place. God be praised that you have retained the Faith--I will enclose you a pair of Scapulars and one for Sylvester--some few Agnus Deis and medals blessed; one is for yourself set in gold now mind you keep it and say a little prayer for your Aunt--The next time you write give me your direction in full I may have a package to send---When you write let me know if Hostetter is dead- he used to write me but I suppose I was too candid for him I told him very plainly that it was impossible for anyone to save their souls out of the Catholic Church--I did hear that some of children became Catholics he never told me so but your Aunt Betsey Davis told me that sister Sally had written to her--Now Ann here is a good long letter I assure you I seldom write such letters with a family of three hundred and twenty you may suppose what little time--love to Sylvester--tell him I was so pleased to hear that good lady speak so highly of him-- May Almighty God bless you both is the sincere wish of your ever affectionate Aunt in the heart of our Immaculate Mother.

From Clarence Cummins - March 26, 1952

My grandmother, Harriet Ralston, who will be 87 years old next Monday March 31, remembers your great grandfather James and how he enjoyed her upside-down cake so much that he asked for it whenever he came to see them. My mother and aunt also remember how kind and good natured he was, and was always chuckling at them with a twinkle in his eye, and my Aunt Martha recalls the time when she, her father Lake, and Uncle James went fishing in a rowboat on the Maumee River.

Letter from Mrs. Edward T. Devant to M. Pauline Shorb.
April 10, 1957

Dear Pauline,

- - - - - - - -

I am indeed most interested in our family records, and have two nieces who are, also, and who hope to be able sometime soon to go to Maryland, and look up the Davises, Shorbs and Troxells -

The most authentic information I have ever had on the Shorbs is that given us by Mary Ann Rider, and Edith Steele, who is dead, now, and who was, as you remember, I am sure, the daughter of Du Barth Shorb of California.

- - - - - -

And about the Davises - Practically all I know of them is hearsay, remembering my two dear aunts, - my mother's sisters, both of whom lived to be over 90, and who were grown women before they left their birthplace, Emmittsburg, Md. to go to Kentucky - and who talked to me, about them.

My Aunt Nana remembered, of course, going to her grandmother's home, and staying for long visits. This was Mary Elizabeth or Betsey - Shorb who was the widow of Dr. Ephraim Davis, who was the first adult buried in the little Catholic church yard in 1831 in Littlestown, Pa. These are the two ancestors whose portraits I have -

Aunt Nana also remembered very well Mary Elizabeth's father John Shorb, who spent several weeks or months in bed during one of her visits, as he had broken his leg - One of her "little girl" tasks was to sit by the huge four-poster bed, and fan the old gentleman, and she remembered how, if she grew drowsy or inattentive, he would poke her into action with his cane.

Dr. Davis' and your Ann's mother, Ann Sappington Davis was a "great lady" in the community, according to the stories handed down to me. She was very charitable, and helpful to those who were in trouble or in need, and always was dressed in white, and went about on her missions of charity riding a white horse.

The Shorbs, too, were people of much importance, and at least, one of their lovely homes is still near Emmittsburg and Littlestown, for my nieces have been there, stopping to see it and being very graciously received by the present owners - This is "Clairveaux". My nieces are hoping to locate "Happy Retreat" when they go again, but I imagine "Trevania" has long since been destroyed.

I wish I could tell you something really definite about the Davises - - - - - It has always been family "tradition" that the Davises came from Wales and England with the first of the Lords Baltimore.

- - - - - -

I have always been as interested in your Shorb - John is it? for the older members of my family never seemed to have known of him. They always spoke of Joseph Shorb and his nine sisters - one of whom of course, was my dreat grandmother "Betsey" Davis.

- - - - -

With kindest regards

Sincerely
Alice Smith Davant
